After the retirement of the president, Brigadier General Schoffeld responded to the toest "Army and Navy," Governor Beaver to "Thirteen Original States." Among other speakers was Governor Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia. A meeting of governors of the states to consider the question of erecting a monument in Independence square in commencation of the adoption of the constitution, was held in Governor Beaver's headquarters in the Lafayette hotel this afternoon. Governor Beaver presided, and concern the executions present were and among the executives present were Bodwell of Maine, Green of New Jersey, Buckner of Kentucky, Richardson Wilson of West Virginia, Amos of Massachusetts, the monument erected by the thirteen original states was amended to have all the states in the Union participate in the coninal states was amended to have all the states in the Union participate in the contemplated memorial. Governor Buck-ner of Kentucky, suggested that there was no corn in lilinois. This coupled with the fact that there was at least two very stub-ner of Kentucky, suggested that arrangements be made for an annual arrangements be made for an annual meeting of the governors of the various states for the nursues of special intercourse. The leading four paragraphs a follows: states for the purpose of social intercourse and the interchange of views. After discussion as to the place of the contemplated meeting, a resolution containing Buckner's idea was adopted. A committee of five being named to arrange time and place. Gov. Beaver announced that he had in his pes-session a cup and saucer for each of the executives of the states and territories, a present from a New Jersey establishment, showing the progress of the latter state in porcelain manufacture in the recent year.

President Cleveland's response to the toast, "The President and the United State," at the dinner by the Historical and Scientific societies.
"On such a day as this, and in the atmosphere that now surrounds him, I feel that the president of the United States should be thoughtfully modest and hum-ble. The great office he occupies stands today in the presence of its maker, and it is especially fitting for this servant of the people and creature of the constitution, amid the impressive scenes of this centenamid the impressive scenes of this center-nial occasion, by a rigid self-examination to be assured concerning his loyalty and obedience to the law. He will find that the rules prescribed for his guidance re-quire for the performance of his duty, not the intellect or attainments which would raise him far above the feeling and senti-of the plain people of the land, but with such a knowledge of their condition and sympathy with their wants and need as will sympathy with their wants and need as will bring him near them, and though he may be almost appalled by the weight of his responsibility and the solemnity of his situation, he cannot fall to find comfort and encouragement in the success the fathers of the constitution wrought from their simple patriotic devotion to the rights and interests of the people. Surely he may hope that if reverently invoked, the spirit which gave the constitution life will

The first continental congress and the con-stitutional convention met here, and Philadelphia has still in her keeping Carpenter's hall, Indendence hall and its bell and the grave of Franklin. As I look about me and see represented here the societies that express so largely the culture of Philadelphia, its love of art, its devotion to science, its regard for the broadest knowledge, and its studious care for historical researches, societies, some which antedate the constitution, I feel that I am in a noteable company. To you is given the duty of preserving and protecting your city for all your fellow countrymen and for mankind, the traditions and the incidents related to the establishment of the freest and best government ever vouchsafed to man.
